A NEW SUBURBAN HOME.

Mr. Flanner's Beautiful Place North of Mapleton.

Among the number of new residences remore picturesque than that of Frank Flannet, situated on Meridian street, north of Mapleton. It was the intention of Mr. Flanner to build just a beautiful country home, and in this he has succeeded admirably. The first story of the house is plaster and bowlders, the upper stories being stained shingle. A wide veranda running around the house is made of cobble, the floors being of cement. All the wood used in the porch | Number of Increases Made Among the is the natural wood oiled. The gables are half plaster, with timber above, and on the south side of the house a pretty sun dial in staff is an effective decoration. Above the front door is a unique head carved by Mr. Schwartz, who carved the soldiers' monument figures, and the door itself is a massive-looking affair, with iron grill work On entering the house there is a grand hall, twenty by thirty-two feet, which is entirely finished in dark oak in Flemish design. The grand stairway is quite an unusual thing and fashioned after the modern German style. It is also in Flemish design and dark oak, and the balustrade. which has a niche in front on one side, has designs of scrollwork of growing plants, the work being all hand-carved. In several other parts of the house this floral lesign is carried out, in cozy corners and s. The large fireplace in the grand is copied after the old Dutch style, bowlder and wood mantel and pebble hearth. Facing to the front is a large bay window with a window seat and a screen, which is a portion of the main hall, and makes this a cozy corner. The screen has design in scrollwork of sunflowers. The all is also separated from the stairway

y a screen effect, made in German-Flemish ign, on one side having a twisted column he parlor and library is also finished in Temish, the walls being a deep rich red which blends harmoniously with the woodwork. One of the unique features in the the east. A stone seat is built outside this window on the porch. This room is finished in golden oak and an archway was built especially for the sideboard. The interior urnishings of the house are somewhat on the Oriental idea, rich old Oriental rugs The second story contains the sleeping rooms, each of which is finished in a distinct color. The children's room white, another room is bright green, while another is finished in cherry. The servants quarters are entirely separate from the dwelling, being to the rear. On the third floor a large dancing or ballroom has been arranged. The bathroom is all in white, the floor being tile and the wainsoting white marble.

A commodious modern stable is situated in the rear of the grounds, built on the outside of the same material as the house, with all modern improvements on the inside. A water tower built on the top supplies water to the house, as well as to the stable. Mr. Flanner also has his own gas plant for illuminating and fuel in the kitchen range, as well as the grates. A large furnace will heat the house in the winter time.

Pleasant News. Good housewives have had their patience tried long enough. For years the question f taking trunks on a trip has been one attended by no little worry, owing to the damrugs in getting them in and out of the house At last the problem has been solved by the Indianapolis Transfer Company, 'Phone the new up-to-date concern, which fures two men on all wagons, at no additional cost. This company makes calls promptly on time, day or night, and gives cherks at residence. They also have, in connection, a fine carriage service, which is receiving many complimentary notices.

THEIR MAINS TOO SMALL

CITY ATTORNEY'S COMMENT ON NAT-URAL-GAS INSUFFICIENCY.

Intimates that Some One Might Bring Suit to Forfeit &

City Attorney Kern discussed the naturalgas outlook yesterday and expressed himself very forcibly in favor of compelling the gas companies to do something better than they have been doing for the people in past winters. He said the companies should either furnish enough gas to comply with their obligations to the public or else give up their charters to companies which would sons farther west. The one which was redo so. The main trouble, he says, is that the companies are using mains too small to accommodate the pressure required to supply the increased demand from this He says, in his opinion, there is no doubt that there is enough gas in the wells owned by the companies to supply the city demand, or at least enough of it to keep the private homes in the city warm during the cold weather. In a recent case, in which the Indianapolis Gas Company was being used, the company officials, according to Mr. Kern, admitted that there was plenty of gas in the wells, but that it would cost too much money to put in larger pipes to bring it to this vicinity. This, he thought, was an admission on the part of the company that it wanted to keep others out of the field as long as it was possible to get gas at all, without doing anything to give the people the gas which was their due. He says that there is little doubt that it is illegal for a company to charge full rates or accept the money of the consumers at all and then do nothing to increase the capacity of the plant and give them their money's worth. What chance there was for litigation this winter Mr. Kern was unable to say, but hinted that it would not be surprising if some one began suit to compel a forfeiture of the charters of the companies.

He Has Heard No Complaints. City Attorney Kern says that he has heard no complaints of violations of the smoke ordinance which went into effect yesterday. Most of the factories and big buildings which formerly caused annoyance because smoke thrown out of their chimneys have been fitted with "smoke consumers." which reduce the nuisance to a minimum. This is the time of year, however, when there is seldom any trouble in this respect, but late in the fall it is expected that there will be more or less of the nuisance to eradicate

A MISSIONARY'S DEATH.

Story of Mrs. Wishard's Demise in Far-Away Persia.

The parents of Dr. John G. Wishard, of Teheran, Persia, who live at Danville, have received information of the death of his wife, who was Miss Annabetta Bryan, of Indianapolis. Accompanying the letter is a memorial from the missionaries of the city of Teheran. Her death occurred May 10, 1899, just six years to the day from her arrival in the city. The memorial says among other things: "They at once took possession of the hospital and residence and the grand work done by Dr. Wishard began. Mrs. Wishard was a very successful partner and factor in the success of her husband's work. She was distinctively a home body and perfect angel of brightness and encouragement in her sphere of wife and mother. The home she made for her family was one of the strongest sermons that could possibly have been preached in a Mohammedan country. In the estimation of the European community she has always been held in the same highest regard. In the afternoon of May 10 we who live at the central mission were fairly stunned by a telephone message from Dr. Wishard that his wife was dying and asking us to get assistance. Immediately the able physician, Dr. Odling, physician to her Majesty's legation in Teheran and physician to the Indo-European telegraph department, and Dr. Adcock, chief consulting physician to his Majesty, the Shah of Persia, arrived, who, with Dr. Mary Smith and Dr. Wishard, did everything possible. But it was a stroke of apoplexy that human skill could not help. She was in usual health up to that day. Scon was in usual health up to that day. Soon after 3 o'clock, while drinking a cup of tea. she fell over unconscious and remained in that condition until she died at 6:45 in the evening. Mrs. Wishard leaves a little son, Fred Bryan, aged five, and a little daughter, Bertha Alice, aged four. In twenty-seven years' history of the eastern Persian mission Mrs. Wishard is the first missionary who has been called by death to lay down her work. She is the first adult American to die in eastern Persia. The remains were taken across the city to the mission chapel, which was packed. Heads of legations, corporations and Persians were present, many of them in full uniform. The prime minister had sent Mirza Ali Naghi Kahn Mustes har-un-Sultan, ex-special ambassacor to Washington, in full uniform to represent the Shah. The native church people were pres-

A GREEN GOODS GAME.

Cerro Gordo's Deputy Postmaster Charged with Attempting One.

Sylvester Willis, the assistant postmaster of Cerro Gordo, who was arrested Friday and bound over to the United States grand jury, made a full confession, it is claimed, to Inspector Fletcher, who worked up the case and caused the arrest. Mr. Fletcher returned to this city yesterday and said that Willis was trying to work the old-time green goods game. A number of circulars were received in the vicinity of Cerro Gordo from green goods men of New York, and some of these were sent by Willis to perturned to the department was from an Iowa man. The circular was in regular form and the Iowa man replied. He then received a letter from Cerro Gordo, giving full instructions how to proceed, and the letter was signed "A. Lax, Box 1163, Cerro Gordo, Ind." The postmaster at Cerro Gordo gives but little time to the business of the office. and it has been conducted almost entirely by his deputy, Willis. Inspector Fletcher wrote to the Cerro Gordo postmaster and asked him if he knew any such person as "A. Lax," but no reply was received to the letter. Mr. Fletcher wrote a second letter, in which he called the attention of the postmaster to the regulation requiring a prompt answer to all official communications, and n reply to this received a letter which was written by the deputy, stating that such a person was unknown. Mr. Fletcher at once saw that the letter written to the Iowa man containing instructions how to get the "goods" and the letter written to him by the deputy were written by the same man, and he charged Willis with writing the green goods letter. Willis, Mr. Fletcher said, acknowledged it to him and told him, in the presence of the postmaster, what he expected to do. Willis was taken before the commissioner at Muncie and bound over in the sum of $500.

Joseph Kroot Insane.

Jeseph Kroot, twenty-three years old, a junk dealer living at 819 South Capitol avenue, was yesterday declared insane by a commission composed of Drs. E. F. Hodges and W. B. Fletcher and Justices Lockman mestic affairs have been heard of in the courts. The elder Kroot and his wife, who is the stepmother of the demented young man, have had a great deal of trouble and it is said his unfortunate condition is partly due to worrying over their affairs. The young man has the delusion that the police are after him and that he is being pursued by people who mean to harm him.
